Description			The journalism of Agency - is based mainly on journalistic practices necessary to be respected in an open media market to new technological developments. International news agencies are powerful industries and leader of information, adapting anytime to new numerical models dictated by many factors of economic actors, political and geo-politics. News agencies are industries built according to the needs of an open market, where the news is sold as a commodity formatted in different ways, text, picture, video, or infografistative or mobile: everything transmitted between multiple communication tools from satellites to cell phones or even passing the watch we wear ... and from where the information can pass quickly. Because of the speed of the news which is transmitted in real time between multiple means of information always developing, writing and reporting practices of the Agency news have been introduced widely in contemporary journalism and also have become part of other systems of the communications industry , introduced widely in the market. Today news agencies operate as major information industry which is obliged to fit the needs of a market that day by day is becoming more competitive between input methods or other numerical systems.
Objectives			Full information for international and national news agencies. Introduction to institutional construction of a news agency the market it covers. Operation of news agencies, geopolitics of information coverage. Reporting ways associated closely with evolutions of numerical era which directly affects the format of writing, but also in other forms of reporting categories as infografia, even if fixed or mobile, video, photography and digital. The role of news agencies in a new market "digital story-telling". Within this mobile world, the information transmitted by news agencies or other complementary tools of information as information channels (News), mobile phones, video etc. has certain features and rules of the news division and its enrichment on the basis of a certain methodology and practise.
